The Waorani tribe of the Amazon Rainforest

A

The Waorani tribe, who live in the Amazon Rainforest in the Ecuadorian Andes, live completely differently from the way most of us live. They have always preferred to live on hilltops to avoid being close to big rivers, which could flood, and their lifestyle has hardly changed for thousands of years.

B

Each village traditionally has one or two long houses made of the natural materials the tribe finds in the forest. These are usually occupied by an older married man and his extended family. When there are more than about 30 people in the house, one of the man's brothers usually builds another house within an hour's walk.

C

The Waorani still hunt their food using tools which they have made from whatever they can find in the forest. They still make all their tools in the way their families did over 2,000 years ago. They hunt monkeys and several species of birds, as well as collecting wild foods from the forests. They also grow a variety of crops.

D

They have no written language, but they pass on their history and knowledge through songs and stories about their ancestors. Until quite recently, the tribe had little to do with other tribes, although their history stories speak of fighting with other tribes. In 1958 there were about four main groups of Waorani (about 500 people in all) spread over 20,000 kilometres. That year the tribe had their first relationship with people from outside the community. Since then the fighting with other tribes has decreased.
