CHANGES IN SHOPPING HABITS

The way we shop is changing all the time. Modern technology lets people shop from home, the office – in fact anywhere. Older people like going to the shops but many younger people use the internet to find out about a product before they buy it. They can read reviews and see if the product is good or bad.

Online shopping is very popular and many small businesses only sell online. For these companies, pop-up shops are very useful. These are shops which suddenly appear in the town for a short time. They are a good way for small companies to meet their customers and tell people about their products. They are also cheaper than traditional shops.

More and more people have smartphones today so mobile buying or selling is also popular. People can pay for goods with their mobile phones. They can use their phone when they are in a store. They can get information about special offers or where to find products.

- a Today everyone shops from home.
- b Young people get information about products before they buy.
- c The reviews are always good.
- d Many small companies sell their products online.
- e Pop-up shops are popular in many cities.
